PASS IT ON TO THE SOCIAL SERVICE BUREAU

Ways in Which the New Organization May be of Assistance to Those Who Are Not in Need of Charity, as Well as To Those Who Are Poor.

A number of years ago there used to be a popular poem which began with the advice: "If you have a kindness shown, pass it on," and there was plenty more of the same kind of good sense throughout the entire poem whose theme was to "pass it on."

In more ways than one the idea expressed in the poem has been adopted in Kingston by the Bureau of Social Service, which has become a sort of clearing house for all forms of good work and service, whose results will accomplish still greater practical good if this advice is followed by those who are anxious to co-operate with the Bureau.

In order that the best results may be obtained, the following suggestions are made to everyone in Kingston:

What to Do "If—"

First—If anyone asks you for aid, tell them to go to the Bureau of Social Service.

Second—If you want a woman or a man to work for you by the day, call up the Bureau of Social Service.

Third—If any Sunday school class, or any society, wants to make a particular family happy throughout the holiday season on the winter by helping them to help themselves, or otherwise, consult the Bureau of Social Service.

Fourth—If anyone has plain sewing to be done, or children's dresses to be made, and wants a competent needlewoman to help, telephone to the Bureau of Social Service.

Office Hours and Telephone Call.

The Bureau of Social Service maintains an office in the Municipal Building on East O'Reilly street, which is in charge of Mrs. Laura MacMillan, who is employed by the Bureau to carry on the clearing house work. In order to systematize the work, accommodate the public and be ready to aid those for whom the Bureau was organized, Mrs. MacMillan's office hours at the Municipal Building are as follows:

8:30 to 9:30 a. m.
1.00 to 2:00 p. m.
4:30 to 5:30 p. m.

Mrs. MacMillan's telephone call at the Municipal Building is 1586.

Practical Side of the Work.

The practical side of the plan adopted by the Bureau can be realized in an instant. The Bureau co-operates with every other philanthropic and charitable society and institution in Kingston and records are kept which already have proved invaluable. Conditions compel many people to seek aid when they are able and anxious to find employment, and through the system adopted in Kingston, as in all other cities, records are kept by one central agency, which in this case is the Bureau of Social Service. This Bureau, then, is in the best position to know the needs of the individuals and families. Experience has shown many times that occasionally there are individuals and families who apply to many agencies for aid, and duplication is avoided by having all cases reported to the Bureau. That is the reason for suggesting that if anyone asks for aid, tell them to go to the Bureau of Social Service.

The people who are anxious to find employment, even though it may be temporary, naturally are known to the Bureau of Social Service by reason of its own investigations and the work of the other charitable and philanthropic institutions and organizations in Kingston. Although all sensible people who are in need either of help or employment seek the columns of The Freeman, experience has proved that some people are so thoughtless as to overlook The Freeman's advertising columns, and so many men and women spend their time in seeking to find work which the others are not only willing but are anxious to do. The Bureau of Social Service naturally becomes acquainted with these cases, and as soon as the need for a workman or workwoman is reported, the motto of "pass it on" is followed out to the letter.

The "pass it on" policy extends also to the third and fourth suggestions made above, as can be readily understood.

Read the Suggestions.

If the suggestions printed above are read carefully and remembered, the results to be accomplished in Kingston during the winter can be made very satisfactory by co-operation on the part of the public along the lines suggested. The Bureau of Social Service is organized to carry on the work indicated by its name. Anybody who wants to help can do so and his or her efforts will be sincerely appreciated. The suggestions stated above furnish a practical way to help.

Barges in War Service.

It is learned that many of the boats and barges of brick manufacturers along the Hudson are being leased to navigation and transfer companies to take care of some of the war freight accumulating on the wharves in New York city. The barges are chartered for the entire winter.

NEWS NOTES FROM THE HIGH SCHOOL

Kingston high school is to have a Student Council—that is a body of students representing all the students who will in a measure regulate the activities in the high school. This body will be in touch with all the students and the interests of the school at large may be gotten at in this way. Professor Moulton in announcing this stated that as nearly as possible there should be one boy and girl representative from each roll call room, but that the number of underclass representatives will be limited so that the upperclassmen may have a slight majority.

Recently the students have been informed that the number of offices each student may hold will be limited. As yet no exact limit has been set but it is understood that the number will be set as not more than two or three. This insures an opportunity for a more widespread rule, giving at least practically every upper classman an opportunity to hold office.

This restriction of office holding will demand a more widespread interest in school activity and providing there are enough students willing to devote the time necessary in occupying these positions it will be a great benefit to the school.

A committee from the Debating Club interviewed Mr. Moulton to ascertain whether or not the varsity debating team would be entitled to the honor of having a "K," for making the team since all the athletic organizations are to be invested with this honor. The privilege has been denied, and the club feeling that the team will merit some mark of distinction since the fellows on it will spend more time in training than the athletic associations and since they alone are called upon to maintain the standards of the school in contests of wits and mental ability have decided to present the team with gold medals and the matter of selecting these medals has been referred to the executive committee.

Last Friday evening a debate was held in the high school auditorium on the question, resolved: "That the Philippines should be granted their independence." The negative, upheld by Maines, Winne and Goldwasser, leader, overcame the affirmative, upheld by Hasbrouck, leader, and Palen. The defeat of the affirmative may be partially attributed to the illness of Mr. Sibley, the third speaker of the affirmative, who was on this account unable to take part. The affirmative put up a good fight and made a fine, clear reputation.

The preliminary debates prior to selecting the varsity team are about over and the judges who have judged these debates will soon be requested to choose the varsity team.

The boys basketball team has just begun this season's work under the guidance of the science teacher, Mr. Schoonmaker, who is entitled to so much credit in regard to the success of the high school's champion football team.

The Girls Athletic Association is already well on its feet and may in the near future organize a basketball team to play girls from rival schools.

Due to the gate receipts on Thanksgiving Day the football team has come out way ahead this season. The manager has not yet made a report, but assurance is given that the team shall have a fine banquet and surely this team is deserving of the best.

The senior and junior classes have hopes of organizing as soon as the student council is established, while the prospects of voting for the editor of the school paper, "The Campus," during the next two weeks are rather vague.

In a Powder Mill Explosion.

Cornelius I. Lefever of Rosendale, member of a commission which has been hearing land and quarry claims against the city of New York, remarked on Wednesday, apropos of the fatal explosion in a powder plant in Wilmington, that he had been in an explosion at one time and escaped without serious injury. He was standing on a ridge, while the powder mill was in a valley 600 feet or more away. Suddenly there was a shock that hurled him to the ground on his back. A column of smoke a hundred feet high shot up, and then timbers, shingles and other debris began to shower the neighborhood. The sun was shining brilliantly at the time and, striking the great volume of smoke, "there was the most wonderful display of colors I ever saw," Mr. Lefever related. Reference to the Creek Locks explosion brought out the recollection that it occurred 20 years ago.

PETTY SWINDLE BY FAKE AGENT

During the past few days two distinct and slick swindling schemes have been worked on the residents of this city, and, as usual, a number of persons have since come to the conclusion that they have been "stung." One of the schemes was a magazine subscription proposition and the other was a plan for securing a suit of clothes for the holidays. In both cases those who had been swindled reported the matter to the local police after the swindlers had left town. This tale has to do with the magazine subscription proposition and an account of the other will be found in another column.

The other day a man representing himself to be a solicitor for McCall's Magazine made a house to house canvass on the West Chestnut street hill, after he had made a canvass of Sleightsburgh, Port Ewen and the smaller hamlets outside of Kingston. He said that his name was E. A. Worden and he offered to send the magazine for the sum of twenty-five cents a year and if twenty cents was added for another magazine issued by the McCalls the subscriber would receive an order for a free pattern that could be obtained at the dry goods store of S. E. Eighmey on lower Broadway. At this point it might be well to state that the regular subscription price for the magazine is fifty cents a year. Mr. Eighmey has the exclusive agency for the McCall patterns.

Shortly after "Worden" had made a canvass of Sleightsburgh a woman called up Mr. Eighmey and told him how she had subscribed for the magazine and it had only cost her a quarter and that she had also gotten an order for a free pattern which she was to get at his store.

Mr. Eighmey informed her that he had heard nothing about any solicitor working this territory for the McCall people, but as the publishing houses are taking up various methods for securing subscriptions he did not give the matter serious thought at that time.

Later he was informed that two women on West Chestnut street hill had also subscribed for the magazine. The more Mr. Eighmey thought of the matter the more suspicious he became and he finally secured the receipts given the women by "Worden" and took the matter up with the publishing house, and with the local police and asked them if they had heard anything about the matter. The police decided to hunt up "Mr. Worden" and ask him for an explanation, but they found that he had left town.

Later this week Mr. Eighmey received a letter from the publishing house, stating that "Worden" was a fraud and that they never authorized any agent to offer the magazine at half rates and any one doing so was swindling the public. They also informed Mr. Eighmey that Worden had been arrested by the Poughkeepsie police and that the case will be pressed against him.

From the letter received by Mr. Eighmey it appeared that "Worden" was known as Edward Roberts, alias Edward Van Debogart, and that when arrested in Poughkeepsie he had confessed to taking subscriptions to the magazine in Watervliet under the name of "E. Worden."

Kingston seems to be a prolific territory for agents working flim flam games and undoubtedly if another slick scheme was presented today there would be found residents in the city who would fall for it.

From all indications those residents who parted with twenty-five cents for a subscription to the magazine might as well charge the money up to the profit and loss column. If the matter had been taken up with Mr. Eighmey in time, it is quite likely that those who later gave subscriptions to "Worden" would not have done so and would have reported the matter to the police.

CHARLES LEE LET GO ON WEDNESDAY

Charles Lee, who was arrested in Highland a week ago Monday night for creating a disturbance and who was committed to the county jail in Kingston for two days by Justice of the Peace DuBois for observation, there being a belief he had had a recurrence of mental trouble, was let go by the shrievalty authorities on Wednesday. Before Lee's two days were up his time was extended by County Judge Jenkins on the request of the town of Lloyd authorities, who wanted additional time to make an investigation as to whether Lee had been under the influence of liquor or was suffering mentally when he got into trouble in Highland. Nothing farther having been heard from the Lloyd officials by the sheriff, the man finally was given his freedom. It is the belief of officials at the court house that Lee, who at one time was an inmate of the Hudson River State Hospital in Poughkeepsie, is entirely rational. Following his release he made tracks for the Rhinebeck ferry on his way to his home in the vicinity of Hyde Park.

Held for Examination.

Thomas Maher, who said he had no home, was arrested on the technical charge of loitering in the city hall on Wednesday evening. Maher was arrested at the request of Mrs. Laura MacMillan, of the Social Service Bureau. It seems that he had at one time been a patient at the tuberculosis hospital and later was appointed orderly at the hospital. Later he left and the next heard of him he applied for help to a down town resident who promptly referred him to Mrs. MacMillan, to whom he applied for assistance. In a conversation with him she became suspicious that he was affected with tubercular trouble and in order that he might be examined by a local physician she advised with the police which resulted in Maher's arrest. This morning Recorder Lang sentenced him to three days in the county jail so as to afford the health officer an opportunity of making an examination. This action was taken more to give Maher the benefit of treatment and a chance to be cured of the disease, if he is affected, and to prevent it being spread by him.

ABOUT SEATS FOR BUTTERFLY BALL

As the sale of tickets for the Butterfly Ball goes briskly on, so many inquiries come in regarding chairs that matters already explained in the press must be repeated in order to avoid misapprehension. It must be understood that the admission ticket to the ball also includes a seat for the entertainment preceding the general dancing. There is no extra charge after entering the armory. There will be no charge in the ladies cloak room. Refreshments and lemonade may be purchased if people so desire, but the seats are free. The entire balcony is free, the 200 elevated seats at the upper end of the hall are free, and the hundreds of chairs which are to be placed at either end of the floor space are free. These last will be over. The management cannot guarantee seats for late-comers. The entertainment begins at nine o'clock sharp and lasts an hour. After that general dancing will continue until 2 o'clock. Muller's orchestra of 20 pieces will furnish the music. Dr. Chandler will conduct during the entertainment.

To Reopen Dashville Church.

With the incoming of a number of new families, the old members of the church and congregation are very anxious to have religious services and a Sunday school. The names attached to the petition are with few exceptions the fathers and mothers of children, who are desirous that they should have the benefit of church and Sunday school.

CENTRAL SYSTEM TO ADVANCE FARE

New Tariff Provides For Passenger Rate of Two and One Half Cents a Mile Between All Points Except on the Albany-Buffalo Main Line.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Dec. 2.—The New York Central Railroad has filed with the up-state Public Service Commission tariffs which place passenger fares on its lines within the state on a two and a half cents a mile basis, except for local tickets on the Albany-Buffalo line, where the charter restricts the road to two cents. All straight fares on the Central out of New York city are increased from the two to the two and a half cents a mile basis. The tariffs do not increase commutation rates. The new tariffs are filed to be effective January 1.

Rates of fare that have become almost historic will go by the board if the schedule filed are approved. The fare between Albany and New York is increased from $3.10 to $3.58, and similar increases are proposed all along the line. In the case of tickets from New York city and points along the river to points between Albany and Buffalo there is also an increase. Though the fare on the cross-state line is kept at two cents the part of the journey up the river will be charged for at two and a half cents. Similarly rates on the branches from the old New York Central, like the Auburn road, the R. W. & O. and other Adirondack points are increased. Albany and Troy were disturbed by the news that the fare between those points has been increased from ten to fifteen cents, not only by the Central but by the United Traction Company, owned by the Delaware & Hudson.

The Central so far is the only road which has proposed to these increases, but tariff experts here expect that all the lines competing with the Central to points like Utica, Syracuse, Rochester and other points in central New York will follow with their own increases.

The increases proposed were not unexpected. Since the opinion of Justice Hughes of the Supreme Court in the Minnesota rate case, declaring that passenger and freight business should each carry their share of the railroad burden and since the declaration of the Interstate Commerce Commission in the five percent freight rate increase case, it has been generally believed that the New York Central and other roads would seek passenger increases in this state.

The lately published reports of the railroads falling off in passenger gross revenue, attributed to the automobile and other means of transportation on the good roads of the state has also encouraged the expectation of increases. It has been believed here for some time that the New York Central, with its large resort business through the Adirondacks and along the Hudson river, where the automobile has been made use of more and more, would be one of the first roads to ask for more passenger revenue.

The commission can suspend the rates proposed on complaint or on its own motion pending a hearing and determination of the reasonableness of the increases. Should such a case be brought, and every indication seemed to point to its bringing, it would make one of the most important rate cases that has ever come before any state commission.

No official statement could be obtained at the offices of the Public Service Commission, pending the digestion of the elaborate schedule of the new tariffs by the commission's rate experts and their study by the members of the commission.

Combine of Brick-Makers.

Control of practically the entire brick making industry along the Hudson river may be secured by John B. Rose of Newburgh, former state senator and chairman of the Orange County Republican committee, if the plan he is promoting proves successful. He has already secured the signatures of 80 per cent of the brick manufacturers to the agreement and it is expected that the other 20 per cent of the dealers will come in on the plan. The new move is amply financed.

First Prize to Miss Thomas.

The committee of judges who recently announced the prizes given for the best critical essays on the Raymond lectures on "Business Efficiency," through a misunderstanding awarded the prize for business women to Miss Catherine M. Morgan. It should have been awarded to Miss Helen W. Thomas, and the error was adjusted yesterday.

COLONEL M'INTYRE TO LEAD MEETING

A notable meeting in the Salvation Army Hall on North Front street is being arranged for Saturday night. The speaker will be Colonel William McIntyre of New York city, who is in charge of the Salvation Army work in New York and New Jersey. He will be assisted in conducting the meeting by Adjutant J. Barrett, a singer and solo-cornetist. All persons are cordially invited. Colonel McIntyre inaugurated what has become known as the "Boozers' day" campaign in the metropolis about five years ago. Each Thanksgiving day in the morning a motorbus is sent out from Army headquarters to gather in "boozers," who are fed and then are assembled at meetings, at which the testimonies of former "boozers" are given. Adjutant Eugene Mott of the local corps was down to New York the latest Thanksgiving and reports there were 205 professed conversions among those gathered in. A convert of a few years ago is Henry F. Milan, formerly editor of a New York paper, who lost his position through drink and was a "down and out" for ten years. He is now superintendent of a publishing business.

Christmas Dinners for Poor

Adjutant Mott is already making preparations for distributing Christmas dinners among poor families of Kingston. The distribution will be made in baskets, as last year. It is probable that kettles will make their appearance in the streets Saturday to receive contributions for the dinners.

Arguments in Bluestone Co. Case.

Before the commission consisting of William M. Chadbourne of New York, Cornelius I. Lefever of Rosendale and J. Charles Snyder of Kingston there were arguments by attorneys on Wednesday in concluding the hearing of the claim of the Ulster and Delaware Bluestone Co. against the city of New York. The city took a parcel of real estate belonging to the company, known as No. 868, about a half acre in extent, for use in connection with the construction of the Ashokan reservoir. The claim of the company also included compensation for the taking of its business. Judge John G. Van Etten argued for the company and William McM. Speer for the city. They will submit briefs later. The testimony in the case was closed last spring.

PATENTED JUNE 29 1915

VELVET SMOKAROLS are a new form of tobacco — the most convenient, economical, logical form of tobacco for the pipe. In substance they are the famous VELVET—a quality that cannot be improved—the tobacco that was awarded a Grand Prize (the highest award ever given to a smoking tobacco) at the San Francisco Exposition. Your attention is also called to the SMOKAROL PIPE

4 Packages 24 Smokes 10c
The same weight of tobacco as in a standard 10c tin.
Slip 'em in your vest pocket.
Drum of 72 smokes 30c

The Smokarol Pipe
French Briar
Solid Rubber Bit 25c
As convenient to carry as a cigar holder

You can fill your pipe and light up quicker than you can open a bag or tin.

JUST A PIPE-LOAD

Your pipe loaded just right by the manufacturer. Just slip your day's supply in your vest pocket. You won't feel it in your pocket any more than you would so many cigars.

NO WASTE WHEREVER USED

You can load your pipe with a VELVET SMOKAROL in the wind, just as easily as you can seated in your own home. The pure rice paper, in which the tobacco is wrapped, is tasteless and odorless.

NO MORE PIPE ODORS

Do you know why your pipe has had an odor? Fine particles of tobacco drawn into the stem and mixing with moisture gives a pipe its strong odor.

PIPE SWEETNESS

VELVET SMOKAROLS prevent fine particles from sifting to the bottom of the pipe and being drawn into the stem. That means pipe sweetness.

FOR OUT-DOOR SMOKERS

The SMOKAROL PIPE is a great out-door pipe. Holds its ash in the wind. Handy to carry. Takes up little more room in your pocket than a cigar holder and is as easy to keep clean.

VELVET SMOKAROLS vs. BAGS AND TINS

Some men may want to smoke VELVET SMOKAROLS in the old way—if so, crumble one in the palm of your hand and fill your pipe as you usually do. Surely VELVET SMOKAROLS are handier to carry than bags or tins.

Beautiful Music Room.

Unquestionably one of the finest music rooms along the Hudson river has been opened by Stock & Cordts on the second floor of the big store on Broadway where the latest models of the Edison Diamond Disc machine handled by the concern are displayed. The music room is separated from the furniture display by an artistic and handsome grill in ivory finish with windows draped with silk curtains and is lighted by the indirect system of electric lighting. The floor is carpeted in green and the room is furnished with a number of handsome and beautiful pieces of art and statuary from the large stock carried by the store. Especially beautiful are the pieces of imported teak wood which was shipped direct from China. The firm has spent considerable time in planning the room and its contents and the results obtained show what good taste and judgment can do in fitting up a room. The music room makes a charming retreat for music lovers where they can remain and enjoy in comfort their favorite records played on the machine. An attendant is present at all times to demonstrate and the firm extends an invitation to all to visit the music room.

VERDICT AGAINST KERHONKSON MAN

County Judge James Jenkins, as referee under appointment by the supreme court, has reported a verdict for the plaintiff in the action of the Everett & Treadwell Co., wholesale grocers of this city, against Wilson Addis, a storekeeper of Kerhonkson. The suit was brought for the recovery of a balance on goods purchased of the Kingston concern by Addis. Referee Jenkins finds that from December 19, 1913, to October 23, 1914, the Everett & Treadwell Co. delivered to Addis groceries, provisions and other merchandise to the value of $2,066.47, and the Kerhonkson dealer has made payments in the amount of $1,175.65, leaving $290.82 due. This it is directed Addis shall pay, together with interest from October 23 of last year, making the total amount $310.09.

SOCIETY NOTES.

An informal dance will be given in Katrine Grange Hall on Friday evening by the members of the Grange. Tickets will include cake and coffee and ice cream will be on sale. The public is invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Saul Smith have returned from Niagara Fall, where they spent their honeymoon and have gone to their new home at 40 Sherman street. On Wednesday evening a number of their many friends tendered them a tin pan serenade. Mr. Smith proved equal to the occasion, invited all hands in and treated them to ice cream, cake and cigars. After spending a social hour the guests wished them a long and prosperous wedded life, bade them good night and retired to their several homes.

Postponed Federation Meeting.

The special meeting of the Federation of Women's Clubs which was to have been held on Saturday afternoon of this week, at the Federation House, has been postponed for one week. It was found desirable to put off this meeting to the later date because of the regular meeting of The Coterie on Saturday, and also in view of the many activities of this week, especially the final preparations for the coming Butterfly Ball. All members of the Federation, are therefore asked to reserve Saturday afternoon, December 11th, so that they may attend this meeting. All Federation members are also asked to attend the Maria Sanford lecture on Whittier and Lowell, to be given at the Albany Avenue Baptist Church tomorrow, Friday evening, for the benefit of the Federation.

Atharhacton Club.

The Atharhacton Club were the guests of Miss Schaeffer at her home on Washington avenue on Wednesday afternoon. The club members were reminded of the lecture by Prof. Maria Sanford, subject; "Life, Character and Works of Whittier and Lowell," to be given for the benefit of the Federation of Women's Clubs at the Albany Avenue Baptist Church on Friday evening. There was an interesting discussion of current topics, before the special program for the day was taken up. The afternoon was given over to a book discussion, the book chosen being Henry S. Harrison's "Angela's Business." Miss Adelaide Kennedy opened the discussion, giving a clear, concise and keenly interpreted presentation of the work. Her picturing of the two types of women, "Angela," whose business was that of securing a husband; and "Mary Wing," whose business in life was that of supporting her mother, making and keeping a home, and being a womanly woman, was admirably given. The concensus of opinion was that the author was an astute student of womankind, and withall an interesting writer. The next meeting of the club will be with Miss Paulding at The Kirkland.

Gazlay-Bush.

Accord, Dec. 2.—On Tuesday evening, November 30, a very pretty wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Bush when their only daughter, Gertrude Maude, was united in marriage to Leo Cornwell Gazlay by the Rev. R. C. Reynolds of Bellvale, N. Y. To the strain of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Miss Georgia Divine, the bridal party proceeded to an arch of evergreens where the ceremony was performed. The bride wore a gown of white crepe meteor and carried a bouquet of bridal roses. The maid of honor was Miss Sara Geary, cousin of the bride, who wore a gown of pink crepe de chene and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The groom was attended by his brother, Carl Gazlay. The groom's gift to the bride was a lavelliere with a diamond pendant and the bride's gift to her girl friends who served refreshments were gold brooches. They received many beautiful gifts including silver, cut glass, furniture and cheques. Mr. and Mrs. Gazlay left amid a shower of rice and confetti for a trip to California. On their return they will reside at Orange, New Jersey, where Mr. Gazlay is employed. Both the young people are well known here and their many friends join in wishing them a happy and prosperous married life.

Men's Meeting This Evening.

All men interested in the laymen's evangelical movement in the uptown churches are invited to meet in the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church this evening at 8:45.

Business Item.

"Honesty is the best policy," said the ready-made philosopher. "Of course, it is," replied Mr. Dustin Stax. "But the public doesn't always realize it. Most people would rather be cheated a little in an affable way than do business with a person whose conscience keeps him in a state of irritation."

MOTION IS DENIED BY JUDGE JENKINS

County Judge James Jenkins has denied a motion in the case of Isaac Popkin against Abraham Bonnett and wife and against Paul Stracker, tenant on premises, to have the owner of a half interest in the property involved made a party to the action. The property is located near Ellenville and through the foreclosure of a mortgage judgment had been entered. It appears that the wife of Paul Stracker obtained title to half the premises but the deed of conveyance was not recorded until after notice of the pendency of the action to foreclosure the mortgage had been filed. "Therefore, the judgment has the same effect as if Mrs. Stracker had been made a party to the action," Judge Jenkins comments. The court denies the motion to amend the summons and complaints to make the woman a party defendant but directs that the order may provide that notice of sale and distribution of the surplus shall be given Raymond G. Cox, her attorney. L. and J. Weinberger appeared in opposition to the motion.

Boy Scouts Basketball Team.

At the last meeting of Kingston Troop No. 3 of the Boy Scouts of America they organized a basketball team of the following players: John Bilyou, captain, lf.; Harry Hale, manager, c.; Morris Husted, rf.; Kenneth Zeeh, lg.; Frank Decker, rg.; Albert Cooper and Earl Bilyou, subs. They are willing to challenge any team of 14 to 16 years. Write J. Bilyou, 61 Newkirk avenue, or Harry Hale, 320 Hasbrouck avenue.

BOOKPLATES.

Forms and Styles in Use and a Label's Place in a Volume.

Bookplates are not of modern invention. Their beginning was in the latter half of the fifteenth century and their accredited first home Germany. But as a bookplate has the same merit in a library that a scarecrow has in the grainfield, a polite "hands off" to the too ready and forgetful borrower, the fashion of this mark of ownership has increased, not decreased, until today one finds bookplate collections in multitudes as well as bookplate users.

There are three forms of plate, the engraved plate, the photogravure and the line cut plate. The engraved plate has for a long while been as popular as it is beautiful, but recently there seems a shifting in fancy toward the photogravure—just why nobody knows. Perhaps it is the lesser cost, for the engraved plate mounts up from $100 to $500, whereas the photogravure may be had for $25, and the line cut, if one is clever enough to draw one's own design, costs a mere trifle for a simple design. Once one has one's plate, however, the printings therefrom are but a trifle.

There are four distinct styles in plates. The first is the armorial. In this the crest or coat of arms is used and sometimes the owner's name added thereto. The second style is the decorative, in which allegory or pure decoration creates the basis of the idea.

The third is the pictorial plate. This shows the owner's tastes and inclinations. A college boy, for instance, may have a plate which will show a tennis racket, golf sticks, a football. The fourth and last style is seldom seen. Still it exists, so it is worth mentioning. It is classed as portraiture and consists of the book owner's picture or portrait framed in some decorative scheme. And as far as good taste goes it is questionable.

Where to place the bookplate when once it is a possession also rends the soul of many. Common usage and common sense show the best place to be on the inner side of the book's front cover, for a plate pasted between the fly leaves of the book defeated its own purpose. Being well obscured, it is rarely noticed. When a husband and wife combine libraries it is often usual to find the plate of one in the front of the volume and the plate of the other in the back, or one may be added in smaller size beneath the other.—New York Sun.

Welding by Cohesion.

If sheets of plate glass be piled up horizontally to a considerable height without the precaution of separating them by sheets of paper the glass in certain places adheres as tightly as if it were cemented, so that it is necessary to remove it bit by bit. This is due solely to cohesion, which is the property of bodies to adhere as soon as their molecules are in contact. It is almost impossible to make surfaces so smooth and to exert pressure so great that the molecules of the two surfaces will actually be in intimate contact, but in certain machines this does occasionally take place with both steel and lead, effecting a sort of welding so perfect that even the microscope cannot detect the place of union.—New York World.

Daytime Aurora.

An aurora seen in the daytime is described by H. B. Collier in the Journal of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada. The writer was at Viking, Alberta, in latitude 53 degrees north, and observed the aurora half an hour before sunset on April 22. Its visibility was due to the fact that a cloud hung above the horizon, serving as a curtain or screen against which the aurora could be seen. The observer states that "numerous bright, hazy, milklike streamers, appearing to have their source just below the cloud, darted upward, rising about fifteen degrees."

HOW TO MAKE POTPOURRI WITHOUT A ROSE GARDEN.

Rose potpourri is undoubtedly the favorite, though it is not by any means the sweetest or only kind. To make it is simple. Collect together as many rose petals as possible, those of old fashioned roses for preference, and be sure they are free from blight or disease. A rose garden is not wanted. With a little energy one can collect a lot of rose leaves, especially by getting all one's friends to assist in the task. Dry the petals in the sun and weigh them. Say there is a quarter of a pound of rose leaves. Then mix with them these spices: Two ounces each of common salt and bay salt, one ounce of powdered orris root, one-quarter ounce each of cloves, powdered cinnamon, powdered mace and allspice. Mix together in a jar and keep closely covered, stirring every day for a month.

The following potpourri is easier still to make, since all kinds of scented flowers can be used in it—violets, roses, thyme, lemon, verbena, cowslips, lilacs, lilies, lavender, etc.: Pull the petals from large flowers and break the heads off the tiny ones, and put the flowers into a jar as they are obtained. Between each layer of flowers sprinkle a little common salt, powdered mace and powdered cinnamon, a fairly thick sprinkling, varied according to the quantity of flowers. Keep the jar covered, and when it is full and the flowers are brown and dry stir all together.

HOW TO CAN.

Germs or Bacteria Must Be Destroyed to Bring Success.

The theory of sterilization or the complete killing of germs and spores must be understood by canners.

This last point is where many a housekeeper needs more education. Sometimes she may wonder why the tomatoes "didn't keep" or why she didn't have any luck with corn. She must know that both vegetables and fruits are subject to attack from germs or microscopic plants like mold. These germs or bacteria must be killed entirely in order that the food does not become affected by their continued growth. Such bacteria can flourish only when they have air and certain conditions of moisture and heat. High temperature kills these bacteria. This high temperature and exclusion from air are the two facts which need to be watched in all canning.

Such a temperature is from 150 to 212 degrees F. Unless the food is subjected to this temperature for a longer or shorter period, depending on the kind of food, there can be no certainty that the bacteria are killed.

In various sections of the country it is the practice to use preserving powders sold with the purpose of making canning "successful." These powders are unnecessary and, worse still, dangerous, as many cases of poisoning have resulted where they have been used. If the idea of sterilization is understood and carefully followed there will be no need for preservatives. Heat is the best preservative.

One of the most common ways of canning is to fill the jars and place on wooden strips in the bottom of a wash boiler. The objection to this method is the mussiness and general uncleanliness. The wash boiler can be replaced by a steam cooker, which gives the same results with far less effort and watching, which holds from eight to twenty-four jars. They are made with a copper bottom to hold the water and a rack on which to set the jars. The jars are filled as usual with the fruit or vegetables and cold water, the cap is adjusted firmly and the jar is then set on the rack in the cooker. The lower compartment is kept full of boiling water, and without any further effort or attention the jars can be sterilized in the cooker for as long as is necessary. There is no unpleasant lifting of water or boiler, but a convenient, clean and simple handling.

Nearly always sulky children are the smartest, have the keenest minds, the best mental habits. The child who has a fit of real anger at a disappointment loses self control and ought to be very kindly treated, shown the reason why it cannot have its wish, taught lovingly the lesson of self control. Its anger is a sign of weakness, but its sulks are an acquired accomplishment. The fit is well reasoned out in this way:

The child thinks that the mother is loving in nature, does not like to see it unhappy, is miserable herself and, though there may be good reasons why she refuse what it wants, yet if it persists in its uglings, then the mother will sacrifice her judgment to the child's obstinacy and give it what it wants, even to its own hurt.

How to Remove White Spots on Your Dining Room Furniture.

Take several thicknesses of blotting paper and cover the spots with it. Place a hot iron on top and as soon as the surface of the wood is warmed remove the iron and paper and rub the spot with paraffin, rubbing hard enough to leave a coating of the substance. Then rub with a warm piece of flannel until the whiteness disappears. The operation may have to be repeated.

Longevity of Belgian Women.

It is interesting to note that longevity among Belgian women is remarkable and that their length of life is superior to that of male Belgians. While Brussels has 65 old men of eighty-five to ninety years of age and only ten male nonagenarians, she possesses no fewer than 184 women whose ages are between eighty-five and ninety, 30 between ninety and ninety-five years and six of over ninety-five years of age.

Civilization and Savagery.

The one great difference between the savage and civilized man is that the former clings to the past, while the latter is always looking to the future. Civilization's systems of thought and life are constantly progressing, but the savage's systems are held stationary by customs and religions of a long-past age. We are ruled by imagination, but the savage's world is dominated by a nightmare of tradition.

THE FATA MORGANA.

Conditions That Must Obtain to Allow of Its Production.

The fata morgana is a singular aerial phenomenon akin to the mirage. It is seen in many parts of the world, but most frequently and in greatest perfection at the strait of Messina, between Sicily and Italy. So many conditions must coincide, however, that even there it is of comparatively rare occurrence.

To allow of its production the sun must be at an angle of forty-five degrees with the water, both sky and sea must be calm and the tidal current sufficiently strong to cause the water in the center to rise higher than on the edges of the strait. When these conditions are fully met the observer on the heights of Calabria, looking toward Messina, will behold a series of rapidly changing pictures, sometimes of most exquisite beauty.

Castles, colonnades, successions of beautiful arches, palaces, cities, with houses and streets and church domes; mountains, forests, grottoes, will appear and vanish, to be succeeded perhaps by fleets of ships, sometimes placidly sailing over the deep, sometimes inverted, while a halo like a rainbow surrounds every image.

It is supposed that the images are due to the irregular refractive powers of the different layers of air above the sea, which magnify, repeat and distort the objects on the Sicilian shore beyond, but to the Italians these singular appearances are the castles of the Princess Morgana, and the view of them is supposed to bring good fortune to the beholder.

KINGSTON, N. Y., DEC. 2, 1915.

The future of the building and grounds of the old Kingston Academy is a subject which should receive careful consideration. The property has reverted to the trustees as a result of the abandonment of its use for high school purposes by the Board of Education, and the trustees seemingly are at liberty, now that they have in their possession a quit-claim deed, to do with it as they will. Their high standing as citizens, their interest in the welfare of Kingston, and the conditions under which their predecessors obtained the original grant of land from the village appear to make certain, and indeed through their representative, Judge Sharpe, they practically have promised, that the property will be dedicated to public use, in all probability as a park.

In a city in which at almost every house there are front and back yards the question may be raised whether there is really need for a park where indicated. It may be pointed out that the average citizen has a park of his own at home and would not care to go any considerable distance to a public park. Visitors to the city have a resting-place on the grounds of the City Hall, where seats are provided. If seats were placed on the grounds at the Senate House, visitors to the up town business section would be provided for. But neither of these parks, if such they may be called, is or would be used by citizens to much of an extent. An argument for a park at the old Academy grounds is the factor it could be made in the beautification of the city, because of its prominent location practically at the head of Broadway. The grounds are accessible from car lines, splendidly situated in a triangle, between three streets, and with the building have historical associations which make specially desirable their dedication to and use by the public.

A park in this location would attract the attention of strangers in the city to an extent a park in no other available place would. Placed for improvement in the hands of a capable landscape architect, the grounds, limited as they are in area, could be made very attractive by reason of the situation and environment. Citizens might make far more use of the park than supposed. Country people, here to do their shopping or attend to other business, would find the park a pleasant place in which to rest. Crowds gathered in Kingston on special occasions would make it a center. Nor is it to be overlooked that citizens might assemble in the evenings during the summer for band concerts

It is possible that some better use of the grounds than for a park could be made, and at any rate there is no harm in making suggestions, which no doubt the trustees would welcome and, if regarded meritorious, consider. The Freeman would be pleased to receive and will publish, brief, pointed communications from citizens bearing on the matter. Obviously nothing can or will be done about the grounds until spring or later and meanwhile there can be a free interchange of views and opinions regarding what is best to be done. In this connection the fate of the Academy building itself should be weighed well. Apparently there is a disposition to have the structure razed and this we feel should not be done. It is true that portions of the building are not in very good condition, but as a whole it could be preserved with probably small expense and some use made of the newer portions. The structure presents an impressive appearance and its removal would be a distinct civic and historical loss. Anyway, there is no need for hurry in demolishing it.

Unrestricted competition of jitney 'busses is given as the cause of the Atlantic City and Shore Railroad Co., operating trolley lines in Atlantic City, going into the hands of a receiver. In this State the "jitney" business is under regulation as a matter of public convenience and policy, protection being afforded the trolley companies which provide a regular and adequate service. However numerous the motor 'busses in a city, they serve only a portion of the persons requiring transit accommodation. Their inroads on the business of a trolley company may be sufficient to wipe out the profits of the latter, and as a consequence its service may deteriorate. The general public has to depend on the trolley, and the Legislature acted wisely in delegating to city authorities the right to withhold franchises for the operation of "jitneys" if the service to be provided by these would be a duplication of the trolley service and therefore not necessary to the convenience of the public.

The vote of the country in 1912 for the protective tariff was 2,000,000 to the good but was divided between the Republican and Progressive parties. In 1916 there will be practically no division. The tariff protectionists in the Progressive party constituting all except a small minority of its voters three years ago, have returned to the Republican fold. The tariff will be the main issue of the coming campaign and the upholders of protection will cast their votes to count.

One day a man who was interested in social work went into the tenement district and, wishing to see a certain man, but having only a general idea where he lived, approached a small boy.

"My boy," he asked, "can you show me where Mr. Schmidowitz lives?"

"Yes, sir. Come right with me, sir."

The boy entered an adjacent doorway and started to climb the difficult stair. Up four flights he went, the visitor breathlessly following, and finally paused at an open door.

"This is the floor, sir," said the boy. "Mr. Schmidowitz lives in there."

"Looks as if we had stacked up against hard luck," remarked the visitor, peering into the room. "Mr. Schmidowitz doesn't appear to be here."

"No, sir," was the rejoiner. "That was him sittin' down on the front doorstep when we come in."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Tact.

A man long in the diplomatic service of the United States tells this story: One of the qualities for which the late King Edward was most admired was his tact, a quality also possessed in no slight degree by James G. Blaine, who was once the guest of Edward, then Prince of Wales. Edward had, both as Prince and King, always insisted upon showing his friendship for Americans and things American. One incident that particularly impressed the man who tells this story was that which took place at a dinner to which Blaine had been invited as the guest of the Prince. It was prior to Blaine's nomination for the presidency. Knowing that the Prince took special delight in honoring Americans, the other guests were generally most gracious to Blaine. The one exception was a Duke of the royal house, who had a reputation for boorishness and lack of tact. During a lull in the conversation after the coffee this nobleman blurted out: "The greatest outrage in history was the reign of George III. There was no justification for it then and there is no excuse for it now." The Prince was visibly embarrassed. Perhaps no man but Blaine could have carried off the situation. While the entire gathering sat in silence Blaine replied, in his carefully modulated voice, "Perhaps, my dear sir, if George III had had as much diplomacy and as wide knowledge of his great grandson possesses America might still be English." The Prince at once turned the subject, to the relief of all present, but the teller of the story saw him grip Blaine's hand with a twinkle of admiration in his eye at the end of that function.—Washington Star.

CLERKS DEFEAT CANDY MAKERS

A large and enthusiastic crowd of basketball fans were present at Washington Hall Wednesday evening to witness the game between the shipping clerks and the candy makers of the Derrenbacher Candy Company, the game resulting in a victory for the clerks by the low record score of 6 to 4.

Both teams seemed to have an equal following of rooters present and the big hall was constantly in an uproar as one favorite after another would display a startling amount of scientific knowledge of how the game should be played in proper style. "Young Hickey" of the clerks was the shining light of the contest, he being constantly on the job, tackling and blocking the opposing players, and often doing the same to his mates, especially if they happened to have the ball. To his unerring eye the clerks owe their victory as he made a basket with only a few minutes to play and said basket decided the game. The shot was a dandy from the center of the floor. The Wolff brothers were also there with the goods as was the remainder of the clerks, the low score giving ample evidence of their power at the guarding game.

For the candy makers G. Wolff played a great game and the remainder of the team showed that candy making is not their only specialty. It was considered by all present to be the fastest and greatest game ever played betwen amateurs in this city, and another contest will no doubt be played between the two teams in the near future. McLean's orchestra furnished the music for dancing. The line up and summary of the game is as follows:

RIGHT REV. GEORGE W. MUNDELEIN.

NEWLY CREATED ARCHBISHOP OF CHICAGO.

New York, Dec. 2.—Bishop George W. Mundelein, auxiliary bishop of Brooklyn, who according to new appointments from the Vatican received through the Papal Legation at Washington, has been promoted to be archbishop of the archbishopric of Chicago, is probably the youngest archbishop in the world. At the time of his consecration to the office of bishop in 1909, Bishop Mundelein was the youngest Roman Catholic Bishop in the United States, and probably the youngest in the world. He was born in New York city on July 2, 1872.

Bishop Mudelein attracted wide notice by his brilliant defense of Pope Pius when the Pontiff's attack on modernism in the church evoked criticism. The Pope was charged with reactionary tendencies. Bishop Mundelein in public and private speech combated this conclusion. He denominated Pius the "Twentieth Century Pope" and represented him as being fully abreast if not ahead of his times. The favor in which he was held at Rome was shown by his election, the first American to win the honor, to the ancient Academy of the Arcadi in 1907, two years before obtaining his bishopric.

Treachery, though at first very cautious, in the end betrays itself.—Livy.

A Little Chat On the Telephone Directory

THERE is one man in Kingston whom telephone operators universally dislike. He's the man who so prides himself on his memory that he seldom uses the Telephone Directory for anything but a paper weight. He will call for "Kingston 456" with all the assurance of a trainman calling stations, when he really wants "Kingston 546." Then he'll blame the operator, the telephone company and the weather when he finds that the subscriber he really called for is not the one he wanted to talk with.

The memory has a way of playing queer pranks with numbers sometimes. Besides, telephone numbers frequently are changed. So it's a pretty good rule to consult the Telephone Directory before making a call. It takes only a few seconds and often may prevent needless annoyance, both to yourself and to the person called by mistake. Why not make it a rule to consult the Directory on every call you make?

In our next chat we're going tell you about "the best informed girl in Kingston."

BERMAN EXPECTED BACK ANY MINUTE

That's What the Police Were Told When They Called to Inquire About That Suit of Clothes Lottery.

The other day "Gus Berman of No. 622 Main street, Poughkeepsie," came to Kingston with a proposition to furnish the local residents with a new suit of clothes and offered an attractive inducement to secure orders. It might be added that he secured a number of orders and also some advance payments, but he has suddenly left town and his patrons are wondering when their suits will be received.

Mr. Berman after he had looked the town over decided that uptown offered the best opportunity for his talents and his first move was to visit Meyer Gasool, the Main street tailor. He outlined his plan to Mr. Gasool and said that he was representing a large clothing house. If Mr. Gasool would allow him to have the use of his store he would have the customers secured measured by Mr. Gasool and he would also have the job of making any alterations necessary when the suits were received. For this privilege Mr. Gasool was to receive $3 on every suit sold in Kingston.

The proposition looked attractive to Mr Gasool and he had a contract drawn up by a lawyer and both he and Mr. Berman signed it. Then Mr. Berman set out to secure orders for suits. He carried his samples in a small traveling bag and he outlined to a prospective customer how he could secure a first class suit of clothes cheaply The plan was very simple: Mr. Berman intended to organize "suit clubs." By this method he had every customer pay an advance of from 75 cents to $1 and then the customers were divided up into "clubs." After there was a sufficient number in each club Mr. Berman said that he would have a "drawing." By this he meant that if there were ten members in each club they would all draw and the one winning the lucky number would have suit made up first and of course it would not cost him as much as the others. The lottery idea attracted favorable attention among the local men uptown and among Mr. Berman's customers were several prominent members of the Elks' Club on Fair street.

The idea of the "drawing" as Mr. Berman termed it also attracted the attention of the police who heard of it indirectly and Sergeant Hanley became interested and determined to hunt up Mr. Berman and have him explain whether or not a "drawing" was not in fact a lottery and if it was it was a violation of the law and he was liable to arrest.

Sergeant Hanley called at Gasool's shop and learned that Mr. Berman had just left but was expected back any minute. Mr. Berman is still expected back but as yet has failed to return. His disappearance strangely enough coincided with his mobile collections from his would-be customers. Just how many customers he secured in Kingston is not known but it is thought that at least fifty were anxious to secure suits.

One of his customers it is said was not as fortunate as the others who had advanced but seventy-five cents to a dollar to Mr. Berman but he had advanced $6. How it occurred was simple. He accompanied Mr. Berman, it is said, to Gasool's shop and while there saw a sample of cloth that attracted his eye and said he would like his suit made up of that material and asked how much extra it would cost him. Mr. Berman glanced around and seeing that Mr. Gasool was not within hearing distance said that as a favor he would make it but $5 extra. The customer handed over the $5 and also $1 as a first payment on his suit.

It is hardly necessary to say that Mr. Gasool while he has a contract has not received any three dollar bills for suits sold and the customers are still minus the money they advanced on their suits.

The same scheme was worked but a short while ago in Poughkeepsie. The Bridge City address furnished Mr. Gasool by Mr. Berman was found to be fictitious as there is no "No. 622 Main street" in that city. It is said that Mr. Berman secured 75 customers in the city down the river and it is evident that Kingston does not stand alone in the number of "fall guys" that reside here.

It is understood that no complaints have been made to the local police by any of Mr. Berman's customers. The only reason the police investigated the scheme was because they believed that a "drawing" was a lottery and a violation of the law.

Her View of It.

"My dear," said Hawkins the other evening, looking up from his paper, "here's an article from the pen of an eminent physician to the effect that sleeping in the daytime is very injurious." "Well, that's just like a man," rejoined his wife. "They are always trying to trump up some excuse for staying away from church on Sundays."

EASY SETTLEMENT

The problem of filling needs is easily settled on the principle of reciprocity, for what one has to sell the other wants to buy.

This is the great principle underlying the Want Ads and it has worked for years with such great success that this form of advertising has come to be the most popular there is.

The needs of one are supplied by supplying the needs of another. This process simply is the getting of buyer and seller together and The Freeman Want Ads do that to perfection. Try them and see.

Building the Chimney First

Some manufacturers build their advertising structure like Pat tried to build his house—"from the chimney down."

They begin with secondary instead of primary mediums.

They attempt continent wide flight without testing their wings.

They use the logical medium for their advertising—THE NEWSPAPER.

If any manufacturer is anxious to know why this is so, the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, 506 World Building, New York, will gladly tell them.

coming Monday evening, December 6, at the Y M C A auditorium

There will be three artists including Ford Hummel, violinist; Judson House, the noted tenor, and Virginia LosKamp, contralto, the two latter of New York city Among Mr Hummel's selections will be a brilliant Polish dance by Wieniawski and De Beriot's Concerto, No 8, allegro movement, both of which are special numbers In a recent review of Miss LosKamp's work is written "Miss LosKamp's voice is a rich, warm contralto of much depth and sweetness and she won instant admirers by her very pleasing personality Her songs were delightfully chosen and each was received with the warmest applause" This city is especially fortunate to be able to hear Mr House for whom, although he has already attained an enviable place in professional circles, a still greater future is predicted To quote a newspaper criticism Mr House commands a sweetness of tone that is quite entrancing and with this quality he held his hearers spellbound during every number"

Owing to the generosity of some public-spirited Kingstonians the nominal price of fifty cents a ticket has been made possible Tickets are now on sale at Valentine Burgevin's, the Huntington, the Kirkland, the Y M C A, and Connelly's drug store The concert is next Monday evening, December 6, in the Y M C A auditorium at 8 15 o'clock

Enrollment List Soon Complete.

That the enrollment of voters in Ulster county at the late election was heavier than usual is indicated by the fact that the work of compiling the lists from the various election districts, towns, villages and Kingston city wards is not yet completed The work started about November 11 and it was stated today by Isidor Sampson, clerk of the county election board, that it would be finished within a few days The enrollment lists for the several towns and city of Kingston will be printed in pamphlet form for distribution to election officials and interested persons The increased number of enrollments is attributed to the approach of the presidential campaign Enrollment with one party or another is necessary to a voter's participation in the primaries Next spring for the first time in this state primaries will be held for the selection of delegates to national party conventions

HIS DUTY DONE.

The grim messenger of death, stalking up and down the French trenches, has here taken one of the brave fellows, whose departure is not noticed by his comrades, busily engaged in sending bullets into the German position beyond.

FORD PEACE FOUNDRY PILGRIMS WORRIED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Dec. 2.—Keen disappointment was expressed at the Ford peace foundry today when the pilgrim pacifists learned that they were to travel de luxe only in the neutral countries of Europe, the state department preventing any incursions into belligerent territory by refusing passports into lands touched by war.

"What are you going to do about it?" was the question awaiting Henry Ford on his arrival from Detroit.

Vain were the faces on the watchers at the peace foundry who had hoped to hand-pick the boys from the trenches on Christmas morning. And wanner still were the faces of the peace delegates who, perchance, were going 'for the ride,' like the old lady at the funeral. Gone were the dreams of touring Europe and entering the small kingdoms which constitute the orchards from which the popular novelists are wont to pluck their heroine, really princesses in disguise.

A matter of grave concern which is likewise agitating the peaceful breasts of the workers in the peace foundry is whether or not it was the flying of the Jolly Roger which ran the pirate ban[illegible] into the ground some hundred years ago. Therefore the pacifists can be heard murmuring "a peace flag or not a peace flag!" every time the newspaper reporters give them five spare minutes in which to hold a soliloquy.

Madame Schwimmer, the most pacific pacifist of them all, votes for the flag. Her idea is of a flag with a picture on it of two hands clasped over a broken sword presumably England and Germany shaking hands.

But Ellis Oliver Jones, who is likewise an important person in the peace foundry, votes otherwise.

"A flag is a dangerous thing," said he today, "because the minute people have something material to think about they stop thinking thoughts. It is on the thinking capacity of the world that the success of our pilgrimage depends. We believe that the soldiers in the trenches are thinking now and we are going to help the men and women who are not in the trenches to likewise do some thinking."

SWISS DIVORCE CASES.

The Court Always Tries to Settle Them by Reconciliation.

In one important respect the Swiss surpass other nations in the management of their divorce cases, says an English correspondent.

In every town there is a kind of official paper in which one may read daily the following announcement:

"M. and Mme. X., who are in instance of divorce, are requested to appear privately before the judge, alone or with their lawyers, in order to come to a reconciliation if possible."

Before the beginning of every divorce case in Switzerland this notice is published and sent out to the interested parties, leaving the couple, of course, free to attend before the judge or not, as they wish. Often the couple meet.

Although there are no statistics published on the subject, I am told by a leading lawyer in Geneva whose specialty is divorce cases that at least 30 per cent of divorce cases—"much to my loss, unfortunately," the lawyer added, with a smile—are settled by the paternal advice of the judge at these meetings out of court.

In fact, Swiss lawyers will not definitely take up a divorce case until it has passed through the reconciliation process.

If one of the couple does not attend the rendezvous this means that the affair is to be fought out, but in any case Swiss divorces are not expensive.—San Francisco Chronicle.

EARLY CLUBS IN AMERICA.

The First One Was Founded in Philadelphia in 1717.

The two earliest clubs in America, according to Colonel Henry Watterson in his "History of Manhattan Club," were the Fish House club of Philadelphia, founded in 1717, and the Hoboken Turtle club of New York, which was started in 1797. Then came the Sons of Liberty and the Sons of St. Tammany, which originated in the brain of one William Mooney, an upholsterer of 23 Nassau street.

The Sons of St. Tammany, Colonel Watterson finds, were so called after an Indian chief in derision of England's patron, St. George, and one of their main objects was not, as some have supposed in the case of the Tammany organization, to put good Democrats into every job that paid anything, but "to arouse anti-British feeling and to disemminate knowledge concerning the principles of true political liberty."

The Sons of St. Tammany, later the Society of St. Tammany, was opposed to all trends of aristocracy, and it counted as its natural enemy the Society of the Cincinnati, whose membership was originally designed to pass down by inheritance.

The first club of New York founded on the lines of the London social institutions was the Union, in 1836.

No Room for Them.

"Isn't there a notion that spirits walk the earth on Halloween?" "Yes," replied Mr. Growcher. "But they don't. None of them would dare take a chance on meeting the small boys who have taken charge of that particular date."

DECEMBER 2

The man of this birthdate is enterprising, progressive and with good business judgment and while he is saving he is not penurious.

This man belongs to the psychic sphere and should always rely on the guidance of his inner mind. If he will go back and recall the various times when he has listened to that inner guidance he will find he he made no mistakes, but if he listens to the counsel of others he becomes confused and suffers loss.

Middle life is the best period for this man. Under pressure of business life he will be at his best. He has a peculiar ability to foresee the outcome of an event or an enterprise and seldom is his judgment at fault. Sagittarius, the Archer, is the sign of this birthdate. GIRL ADOPTED BY NEW PALTZ PAIR

County Judge Jenkins has granted adoption papers to Bertrand Van Valen and his wife, Edith, of New Paltz, for Ruth Adell Melvin; aged nine months, whom they will bring up as their own daughter. The child is the daughter of Mrs. Maude Melvin, a widow, who until a few days ago lived in Poughkeepsie but has since removed to New Hampshire. The mother told the court she was unable to support the child and that she is in ill health. The Van Valens and Mrs. Melvin are not related but are friends of long standing. The little girl has been given a new name—Ruth Lucy Van Valen. The middle name was that of Mr. Van Valen's mother and there was a little argument between husband and wife over it, Mrs. Van Valen preferring another name for the child. In the adoption proceedings Frederick J. Traver; representing Cunningham & Traver, appeared for the interested parties.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Dec. 1.—Although trading was quiet the tone of the stock market was strong this morning and changes in the first fifteen minutes

New York, Dec. 2.—There was a general selling of stocks for both the long and short accounts this morning. Prices of nearly everything on the list showed losses ranging from a fraction to more than two points during the first fifteen minutes without disclosing any important demand. Steel common yielded ¾ to 85⅝. Anaconda declined ½ to 86⅞ and Union Pacific ½ to 137⅜. Erie was in free supply, dropping ⅞ to 43 and Southern Pacific lost ⅝ to 100⅝. The specialties sustained the heavier losses, Studebaker dropping 2⅝ to 150½ and Baldwin Locomotive 2¼ to 111. After the first fifteen minutes the selling became less urgent and moderate buying caused fractional rallies.

There was a better demand for stocks during the late forenoon and rallies were noted in a number of issues. Most interest was attached to Steel Common which rose from 85⅝ to 86, on large buying orders. Baldwin Locomotive rallied 1⅝ points to 112⅝ and Erie rose ⅛ to 43⅛. A net gain of ¼ was noted in American Smelting which sold at 98½ and Anaconda rose from 86⅞ to 87⅛ against 8¢¾ at the close yesterday. General Motors sold at 460 against 470 at the close yesterday. Union Pacific, Studebaker and Southern Pacific all rallied fractionally. Money 2 per cent.

Stocks were weak during the late afternoon and substantial recessions were noted in a number of issues. Studebaker sold down to 149⅛ against 152⅞ at the close yesterday. Baldwin Locomotive, which sold at 113¼ at the close yesterday, declined to 110¼. Declines of around a point were noted in American Smelting, Distillers, Republic Iron and Steel, Utah Copper and Steel common which sold at 85. Crucible Steel and Anaconda were off about 2 points from last night's final.

The market closed heavy. Operations in the last hour were narrow. Steel common rallied to 85⅛, but later yielded to 84⅞. Changes in other issues were mixed. Government bonds unchanged; others strong.

Love vs. Jealousy.

He—"Do you believe there is such a thing as true and lasting love?" She—"I sometimes doubt it." He—"Well, there is Mr. and Mrs. Gessing, for example. They have been married ten years, and they seem never to want to lose sight of each other. Doesn't that look like true and lasting love?" She—"It may be that; but it looks to me more like true and lasting jealousy."

Black Cats Overrun Island.

"The Island of Black Cats" is a name applied to Chatham island in the Pacific ocean, about 730 miles west of the coast of Ecuador. It is overrun with black cats; indeed, cats of no other color are seen there. These animals live in the crevices of the lava foundation near the coast, and subsist by catching fish and crabs, instead of rats and mice.

ULSTER PROPERTY SALE DEC. 17-18

For Failure of Property Owners to Pay Taxes—Word Received From State Comptroller—Delinquent List Unusually Large.

Great interest is being taken in the advertised sale of Ulster county real estate for arrears of taxes, to be held by Comptroller Eugene M. Travis in his office in Albany this month. The list of delinquent property has been printed in The Freeman on Tuesday for several weeks. Property in other counties is also advertised to be sold and the official advertisement fixes the date of the beginning of the sale as Monday, Dec. 13. As many property owners and attorneys of this city and the county desire to attend the sale, the date when the Ulster property is to be reached at the sale has been desired. J. DePuy Hasbrouck communicated with the state comptroller and this morning received word that the Ulster parcels will be offered on Friday, Dec. 17, and Saturday, Dec. 18. On the first day the parcels down to "telegraph companies" in the list will be offered.

Sales of property for arrears of taxes are held every five years. Those for counties in which the state has a forest preserve are conducted by the state comptroller, while in other counties the sales are in charge of the county treasurer.

In the comptroller's sale, property in Delaware, Essex, Franklin and Fulton will be offered on December 13, in Greene and Hamilton on December 14, in Herkimer on December 15, and in Saratoga and Sullivan on December 16.

The number of delinquent parcels in Ulster county is much larger than in any other county. In fact the Ulster county list occupies 86 pages in the comptroller's tax sale book of 274 pages. It was stated today by persons informed of the situation that there were many errors in tax returns and these explain the presence of a considerable number of parcels in the list. In a good many other instances the taxes in arrears have been paid since the list was compiled.

Wagon on Wrong Side.

Edward R. Cashin's big automobile was slightly damaged on Wednesday evening when it collided with a lumber wagon owned by F. A. Waters. The collision occurred on the Flatbush road at a sharp turn. Mr. Cashin was driving slowly in order to make the turn and the wagon lay on the wrong side of the road when he ran into it. The mud guard was slightly bent and the top of the automobile damaged. This was the same machine which Mr. Cashin used in conveying the "flying squadron" of Democratic orators throughout the county during the recent campaign.

Exhibit of Paintings.

An exhibit of some of the paintings of Mrs. J. S. Carle of this city is being shown in one of the show windows of E. Winter's Sons on John street. The exhibit attracts considerable favorable attention from pedestrians.

Outlawry in Scotland.

The unusual sentence of outlawry recently pronounced by the Scottish courts is a relic of the days before extradition existed. For it was the usual punishment of those who wilfully avoided the execution of legal process and was inflicted upon the criminal who fled the country and could not be brought back. In the old days to be outlawed—in the case of women they called it waived—meant that one could be knocked on the head by any passerby, and outlaws in fact were said to be caput lupinum—that is, they had a wolf's head and could be treated as a wild beast.—London Mail.

Witches and Fairies.

Belief in witchcraft, still an article of the popular creed in Essex and may be elsewhere in England, is not the only survival of the kind. In the south of Ireland are still to be found people who believe in fairies. The writer knew an Irishwoman, one of thousands of her class, who would not travel a country road after dark for fear of them, though what "they" would do deponent sayeth not.—Pall Mall Gazette.

What "Garbler" Once Meant.

"Garble," "garbled," "garbler," are words which nowadays convey quite a different meaning from that which was formerly accepted. "Garble" originally signified simply "to select for a purpose." At one time there was an officer, termed "the garbler of spices," whose duty it was to visit the shops and examine the spices, ordering the destruction of all impure goods. His duties were similar to those of the inspector of the modern health department, who forbids the sale of decayed vegetables or tainted meat. The word comes from a root meaning "to sift." The impurities sifted out have in the course of generations corrupted the term till a "garbled report" is no longer a report wherefrom all uncertainty has been removed, but one that is full of misrepresentation and made misleading with deliberate intent.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, Dec. 2.—Here are our all-eastern selections—a first eleven, a second and a third eleven—which in our opinion, include the names of the greatest footballers which the east produced during the 1915 season:

All-Eastern Selections.

First team—Higgins (Pa. State), end; age, 21, height, 5-10; weight, 172

Abell (Colgate), tackle; age, 23; height, 5-11; weight, 204.

White (Syracuse), guard; age, 22; height, 6-5; weight, 256.

Peck (Pittsburgh), center; age, 21; height, 5-8, weight, 175.

Spears (Dartmouth), guard; age, 22; height, 5-9; weight, 230

Witherspoon (W. & J.), tackle; age, 21; height, 5-10; weight, 185

Shelton (Cornell), end; age, 22; height, 5-10, weight, 170.

Barrett (Cornell), quarter; age, 23, height, 6 feet; weight, 185.

Mayer (Virginia), halback; age, 23; height, 6 feet; weight, 170.

Hastings (Pittsburgh), halfback; age, 23; height, 5-10; weight, 175.

Mahan (Harvard), fullback, age, 24; height, 5-11; weight, 175.

Second Team—Heyman, (W. & J.), end.
Gilman (Harvard), tackle.
Schlachter (Syracuse), guard.
Cool (Cornell), center.
Hogg (Princeton), guard
Cotton (Darmouth), tackle
Soucy (Harvard), end
Williamson (Pittsburgh), quarter.
King (Harvard), halfback
Tallman (Rutgers), halfback
Berryman (Penna State), fullback.

Third Team—Horron (Pittsburgh), end
McLean (Princeton), tackle.
Anderson (Cornell), guard
McEwan (Army), center
Soppitt (Pitsburgh), guard.
Parson (Harvard), tackle.
Eckley (Cornell), end.
Anderson (Colgate), quarter.
Wilkinson (Syracuse), halfback.
Tibbott (Princeton), halfback.
McGreight (W. & J.), fullback.

Nine colleges are represented on that first eleven, Cornell and Pittsburgh are the only institutions that "placed" two men on that team. There were at least a half dozen truly great football machines in the east this past season but none, outside of Pittsburgh and Cornell, possessed more than one player who outshone the other rivals for places on the first eleven

Barrett Stands Out Alone.

There was no difficulty, no need of self-debate involved in selecting the quarter-back for the first eleven. Charlie Barrett, the Cornellian, was the peer of all who played that position—a wonderful all-around player, such as is produced only once in every six or seven years Ranking next to Barrett was Williamson, the brainy, dashing Pittsburgh captain whose great work throughout the season was one of the factors that kept Pittsburgh's record spotless. Anderson, of Colgate, Meehan, of Syracuse, Ewing of Pennsylvania State and Watson, of Harvard, were other men who performed well.

In selecting the backfield to support Barrett we chose—after much study of records—Mahan, of Harvard, Mayer of Virginia, and Hastings of Pittsburgh. There were many others who commanded first team consideration, including King, of Harvard, Tibbott, of Princeton, Tallman, of Rutgers, Collins and Shiverick, of Cornell, Berryman, of Penna State, Scovill of Yale, Wilkinson, of Syracuse, McGreight, of W. & J. and Gerrish, of Dartmouth, but the trio we have chosen for that first team seems to "edge" their rivals

Mahan is an all-around star; a wonder at punting, at drop kicking, at line smashing, at end running and on the defensive. Hastings has been the big score producer for the unbeaten Pittsburgh eleven—one of that rare type of men who know not the word failure when called upon to make gains

The brilliancy of Mayer has been dimmed somewhat by the fact that he has played on one of the so-called smaller elevens. Yet Mayer is one of the greatest halfbacks that the east and south have produced in many years. He scored more points in 1914 than any man in the east and this season, despite the fact that his team grappled with Yale and Harvard, he scored over 100 points.

Higgins a Whirlwind End.

The flank tackling jobs on the first eleven go to Higgins, of Penna State, and Shelton, of Cornell. Higgins shone with especial brilliance throughout the year. Those who saw him in action claim he is one of the greatest ends developed since the days of Tom Shevlin and Johnny Kilpatrick. Higgins is as fast as a Peugot racing car, a fierce tackler, a grand interferer and a fearless player.

Selton, of Cornell, was given the other wing position because the season's record shows that he had a slight "edge" in general all around play over his real rivals—Herron, of Pittsburgh, Heyman, of W. & J., Soucy, of Harvard, Eckley, of Cornell, Harte, of Harvard, and Highley, of Princeton.

Witherspoon, of W. & J., and Abell, the Colgate captain, are the selections for the tackle positions, on the first team, nosing out Gilman, of Harvard and Cotton, of Dartmouth. Witherspoon was the best offensive player in the east with Abell "edging" him slightly on defensive because of his greater bulk. White, of Syracuse, weighing 256 pounds and towering 6 feet and 5 inches above terra-firma, and Spears, the 230 pound Dartmouth husky, land the guard jobs.

White is one of the most wonderful linesman that ever appeared in the east—a veritable stonewall on defensive play and a man who never failed to open a hole in the enemy's line for his backs. Spears is a great defensive player, but a trifle slow on the offensive, yet, in all around skill he showed up superior to his nearest rivals—Hogg, of Princeton, Soppitt, of Pittsburgh, Schlachter, of Syracuse, Anderson, of Cornell, Black, of Yale, Thurman, of Virginia and Dadmun, of Harvard

Peck is Greatest Center.

Peck is our choice for All-Eastern center. He won the place over Coal, the Cornell wonder and McEwan, the army man, after an all season fight All three are dashing players almost as good on offensive work as on defensive play, but to Peck because of his superior dash, his "pep" and fighting qualities goes the first team honor.

Looking at that first team from various angles we feel that it is a real team—one that sizes up as an all-star aggregation With Barrett, Mahan, Mayer and Hastings back of the line, with Higgins and Shelton guarding the wings and with Peck to pass the ball and assist White, Spears, Witherspoon and Abell in throwing back the enemy's rushes, we feel that our All-Eastern outfit can triumph over any other All-Eastern outht in the country.

CALDWELL, WORKING ON HIS FARM, IN FINE SHAPE FOR SEASON.

Dave Caldwell.

Dave Caldwell, the middle distance runner, formerly of Cornell and now of the Boston Athletic Association, promises to be a big factor in the indoor meets in the metropolitan section this winter. Caldwell, although defeated in the 1,000 yard race at the Irish-American games last Saturday showed that he was in excellent formr. He has been working from 6 a. m. until 7 p. m. on his farm and has been in but two races in preparation for the big event. According to the experts who saw Davy getting into his running togs, the runner looked in better trim than he has ever been before.

Helpful Hints for Christmas Gifts!

More people will do their Christmas shopping early this year than ever before. By all means, buy the largest items early, and pick up the knicknacks later.

WHAT COULD YOU BUY

That would be of better value or more serviceable than a nice pair of wool blankets? We were fortunate in securing another shipment of those superfine wool blankets direct from the factory, every one well worth a five dollar bill, selling this week for $4.50 pair; other good values, too, at $1.50, $1.97, $2.97, $3.97.

THE NEWLYWEDS AND

the has-been-weds, and all the folks at home, like a home that's homelike. Nothing like a new rug to brighten up the sitting room, dining room or any other room in the house. We like to show rugs, and if you like to look at pretty rugs, just say "Rugs" to anybody in our store and they will gladly escort you to the rug department, where you will find little rugs and big rugs at the right prices.

HOW ABOUT CUT GLASS?

Certainly everybody likes cut glass. You couldn't make a mistake if you tried, because every piece is useful as well as ornamental: Pitchers, Bowls, Cruets, Tumblers, Vases, Sugar and Creams, Celery Dishes, Fern Dishes, etc.

WHERE'S MY BATH ROBE?

It may be hanging on our rack this week, but somebody's going to get some bath robes this year for Christmas. We hope you'll get one of ours, because everybody says they are the finest ever. If you already have one, suppose you know somebody who hasn't. What's the price? Oh, yes, $3.50, $3.97, $4.50 and $4.97. Put one aside until Christmas week? Certainly. Thank you.

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE FURS.

For a Christmas present? If anyone dares ask you, you, you wouldn't say, no, unless you already have a nice set. If you only want a muff, just say the word, if we can't sell a whole set, we'll gladly sell a muff and guarantee the money's worth everytime.

WISH I HAD A WORK BASKET.

"All right, you shall have one for Christmas. Just pick out the one you like best, etc." That's the talk we like to hear, and frequently do hear around Christmas time. Yes, they are pretty, let us show them.

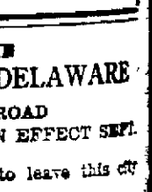
Kingstonian BOILERS



Find Out About This Boiler Before You Decide

Go a little slow.

The wrong boiler is a horrible thing to have in your cellar.

It makes so many uncomfortable.

It may even provoke profanity.

One thing it certainly does do, and that is: digs into your pocket book to keep it fed up on the coal it needs.

Now it's easy enough to claim that this Kingstonian Boiler burns less coal than any other. But to prove it is quite another thing.

It's this very quite-another-thing that we want the chance to prove to you.

Will you give us that chance?
